Self-Regulatory Organizations; Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc.; Order Approving Proposed Rule Change to Amend the Code of Arbitration Procedure for Customer Disputes and the Code of Arbitration Procedure for Industry Disputes to Increase Arbitrator Honoraria and Increase Certain Arbitration Fees and Surcharges

I. Introduction

On June 13, 2014, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. (“FINRA”) filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“Commission”), pursuant to Section 19(b)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (“Act”)¹ and Rule 19b-4 thereunder,² a proposed rule change to amend FINRA’s Code of Arbitration Procedure for Customer Disputes (“Customer Code”) and the Code of Arbitration Procedure for Industry Disputes (“Industry Code”) (together, “Codes”) to increase certain arbitration filing fees, member surcharges and process fees, and hearing session fees for the primary purpose of increasing arbitrator honoraria. The proposed rule change was published for comment in the Federal Register on July 2, 2014.³ The Commission received eight comment letters on the proposal.⁴ On August 5, 2014, FINRA granted the

II. Description of the Proposed Rule Change

A. Background

As stated in the Notice, FINRA is proposing to amend the Codes to increase certain arbitration filing fees, member surcharges and process fees, and hearing session fees for the primary purpose of increasing arbitrator honoraria.⁷ In support of the proposal, FINRA stated that it has “received numerous complaints in recent years from its arbitrators regarding the honoraria paid to them for their service.”⁸ FINRA further noted that surveys of organizations and individuals recruited to be FINRA arbitrators, as well as reports from arbitrators at focus groups, and other arbitrator comments indicate a “heightened sensitivity to the comparatively low honoraria paid by FINRA.”⁹

Although FINRA acknowledged that there are non-monetary benefits to serving as an arbitrator, FINRA still believes that “the current honoraria level is a barrier to recruiting.”¹⁰ FINRA also reported that “arbitrators have regularly cited the honoraria level when leaving the roster, particularly when they are asked to take a new training course or complete a survey or disclosure statement.”¹¹ Accordingly, FINRA believes that increasing honoraria is needed to “retain a roster of high-quality arbitrators and attract qualified individuals who possess the skills necessary to manage arbitration cases and consider thoroughly all arbitration issues presented, which are essential elements for FINRA to meet its regulatory objective of protecting the investing public.”¹²

To fund these honoraria increases, FINRA is proposing to increase certain fees and surcharges assessed in the arbitration forum. Specifically, FINRA’s proposal would amend Rules 12214 (Payment of Arbitrators), 12800 (Simplified Arbitration), 12900 (Fees Due When a Claim is Filed), 12901 (Member Surcharge), 12902 (Hearing Session Fees, and Other Costs and Expenses), and 12903 (Process Fees Paid by Members) of the Customer Code. The proposed rule change would also amend Rules 13214 (Payment of Arbitrators), 13800 (Simplified Arbitration), 13900 (Fees Due When a Claim is Filed), 13901 (Member Surcharge), 13902 (Hearing Session Fees, and

Other Costs and Expenses), and 13903 (Process Fees Paid by Members) of the Industry Code.¹³

In general, the proposal would increase the member surcharges and process fees for claims larger than $250,000¹⁴ as well as filing fees for investors, associated persons, or firms bringing claims of more than $500,000 and hearing session fees for claims of more than $500,000.¹⁵ FINRA recognizes that increasing honoraria to market rates would impose a significant burden on forum users and, therefore, believes that “the proposed rule change is the best option to narrow the gap without unduly increasing costs to forum users.”¹⁶

The following sections outline each of FINRA’s proposed rule change amendments.

B. Proposed Arbitrator Honoraria Increases

Proposed Amendments to FINRA Rules 12214 and 13214 (Payment to Arbitrators) and FINRA Rules 12800 and 13800 (Simplified Arbitration)

Arbitrator honoraria are the payments that FINRA makes to its arbitrators for the services they provide to FINRA’s dispute resolution forum.¹⁷ Currently, under Rule 12214(a), an arbitrator receives $200 for each hearing session in which the arbitrator participates.¹⁸

¹³ See id. at 37786-87. The text of the proposed rule change is available at the principal office of FINRA, on FINRA’s website at <http://www.finra.org>, and at the Commission’s Public Reference Room. For ease of reference, this Order generally refers only to rules in the Customer Code. However, the changes and discussion would also apply to the same rules of the Industry Code.

¹⁴ See id. at 37787 n. 4 (noting, however, that the proposed rule change would also increase the member surcharge for the $10,000.01 to $25,000 tier).

¹⁶ Id. (explaining that, for example, “increasing honoraria to market rates could require a greater increase in arbitration filing fees, which would increase the costs of customers, associated persons, and firms”).

¹⁸ See id. n. 10 (noting that the term “hearing session” typically means “any meeting between the parties and arbitrator(s) of four hours or less, including a hearing or a

FINRA noted that “[c]hairpersons are often the arbitrators on FINRA’s rosters with the most experience who have completed chairperson training.”¹⁹ In recognition of a chairperson’s increased experience and extra responsibilities during a hearing,²⁰ FINRA currently pays chairpersons an additional $75 per hearing day.²¹

Arbitrators also receive honoraria when they decide contested motions requesting the issuance of a subpoena without a hearing (“contested subpoena requests”).²² FINRA assesses a $200 fee to the parties for each arbitrator who participates in deciding the contested subpoena request to cover the cost of the honoraria.²³ As FINRA explained, this amount of honoraria is paid on a per case basis, regardless of the number of contested subpoena requests decided by an arbitrator or panel during the case.²⁴ prehearing conference”). See also id. at 37787 (noting that a typical day has two hearing sessions).

¹⁹ Notice, 79 FR at 37787 (noting that “to qualify as a chairperson, an arbitrator must have served on at least three arbitrations through award in which hearings were held, or be a lawyer who served on at least two arbitrations through award in which hearings were held”).

²¹ See id. at 37787-88. See also id. at 37788 (explaining that a “hearing” means the hearing on the merits and that the chairperson receives the additional honoraria for each day he or she serves as chair at a hearing, regardless of the number of hearing sessions per day).

²² See Notice, 79 FR at 37788 (citing Rules 12214(d) and 13214(d)).

²³ See id.

²⁴ See id. (explaining that “[i]f an arbitrator or the panel decides a contested subpoena request, the arbitrator or panel allocates the cost of the honoraria to the parties in the award”) (citing Rules 12214(d)(3) and 13214(d)(3)).

Finally, under Rule 12800, when a claimant²⁵ files a claim in which the amount in dispute, excluding interest and expenses (“claim amount”) is $50,000 or less, one arbitrator decides the case based solely on the documents provided by the parties (i.e., no hearings are held).²⁶ FINRA refers to these types of cases as “simplified arbitration.” The arbitrator who decides a simplified arbitration case currently receives $125 per case.²⁷

Under the proposed rule change, FINRA would amend Rules 12214 and 12800 of the Customer Code to increase the arbitrator honoraria.²⁸ Table 1 (below) illustrates the proposed increases and the percentage changes from the current rates.

Proposed Arbitrator Honoraria Increases – Table 1

Arbitrator Honoraria	Current	Proposed	Percentage Change
Per arbitrator, per hearing session	$200	$300	50%
Chairpersons (per day of hearing)	$75	$125	67%
Contested Subpoena Requests	$200	$250	25%
Simplified Arbitration Cases (flat rate)	$125	$350	180%

Specifically, FINRA is proposing to amend Rule 12214(a) to increase the payment to each arbitrator for each hearing session in which the arbitrator participates from $200 to $300 per hearing session. The rule would also be amended to increase the additional amount that chairpersons receive from $75 to $125 per day of hearings. Rule 12214(d) would be amended to increase the honoraria that arbitrators receive when they decide contested subpoena requests ²⁵ See id. (explaining that FINRA Rules 12100(e) and 13100(e) define the term “claimant” as a party that files the statement of claim that initiates an arbitration).

²⁶ FINRA noted that it recently raised the claim amount limit for simplified arbitration from $25,000 to $50,000. See id. at 37794 n. 57 (citing Securities Exchange Act Rel. No. 66913 (May 3, 2012), 77 FR 27262 (May 9, 2012) (File No. SR–FINRA–2012–012)). FINRA also stated that “[t]ypically, as the claim amount increases, arbitrators encounter issues that are more complicated to resolve, and, thus, require more of their time.” Id. at 37794.

²⁷ See Notice, 79 FR at 37788.

²⁸ See id. at 37794.

from $200 to $250. Finally, Rule 12800(f) would be amended to increase the honoraria for simplified arbitration cases, which is a flat per case payment, from $125 to $350. FINRA stated that “[a]lthough no hearings are conducted in simplified arbitrations, these cases can be time-consuming, and, in FINRA’s view, the current honoraria level does not reflect fairly the arbitrator’s time and effort to render a decision.”²⁹

To fund these increases in arbitrator honoraria, FINRA is proposing to increase certain filing fees, member surcharges and process fees, and the hearing session fees assessed under the Codes as illustrated in the tables below.³⁰ FINRA stated that it “believes the proposed fee increases would generate sufficient revenue to offset the proposed increases in the arbitrator honoraria as described [above] without placing an undue burden on the public customer.”³¹

C. Proposed Increases to Certain Fees and Surcharges

1. Proposed Amendments to FINRA Rules 12900 and 13900 (Fees Due When A Claim is Filed)

Currently, Rules 12900(a) and 13900(a) require a customer, associated person, other non-member, or member who files a claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or third party claim to pay a filing fee to initiate an arbitration. The filing fee consists of two parts: (1) a non-refundable fee, which FINRA keeps when a claim is filed, and (2) a deposit, which FINRA may return in whole or in part to the party that filed the claim in certain circumstances.³²

²⁹ Id.

³⁰ See, e.g., id. at 37790 (noting that although FINRA refers to rules in the Customer Code, the changes and discussion below also apply to the same rules of the Industry Code).

³² See id. at 37788 (providing examples of when fees can be refunded and citing the FINRA rules governing the return of those, including Rules 12902(b)-(d) and 13902(b)-(d)).

Under the proposed rule change, FINRA would amend Rules 12900 and 13900 to increase the filing fees for investors, associated persons, other non-members, or members bringing claims of more than $500,000.³³ Tables 2 and 3 (below) show the current filing fee, proposed filing fee, dollar and percentage changes, and the non-refundable and partial refund breakdown of each fee.³⁴

³³ See id. at 37791.

³⁴ See id. at 37791-92 (discussing “Filing Fee Increases”).

As reflected in Table 2, under the proposed rule change, FINRA would increase the filing fees for claim amounts beginning at the $500,000.01 to $1,000,000 tier, so that the fee increases impact only those claimants with larger claims.³⁵

The proposed rule change would also create two new tiers, at the upper level, to spread the cost increases among larger claims. The first new tier of $1,000,000.01 to $5,000,000 would have a filing fee of $2,000. The second new tier would begin at over $5,000,000, with a filing fee of $2,250.³⁶

In addition, the proposed rule change would increase the unspecified filing fee by $325. FINRA believes the unspecified claim fees should fall in the middle of the claim amount tiers for each fee type, where a majority of the specified claims are clustered.³⁷

As stated above, FINRA believes that these increases would help fund the increases in arbitrator honoraria. Furthermore, FINRA believes potential impact of the proposed increased filing fee would be mitigated by, among other things, (1) FINRA allocating most of the increases to the refundable portion of the filing fee;³⁸ and (2) the ability of arbitrators to order a respondent to reimburse all or part of any filing fee paid in the award.³⁹

As reflected in Table 3, the proposed rule change would also increase the filing fee for members at the highest claim amount tiers, as well as at the unspecified claim tier. For each of the above increases, FINRA stated that it is proposing to add the increased amount to the refundable portion of the filing fee, explaining that “this part of the filing fee, which is linked closely to FINRA’s costs to administer arbitration cases, particularly hearing sessions, could be avoided if the parties agree to settle.”⁴⁰

2. Proposed Amendments to FINRA Rules 12901 and 13901 (Member Surcharge)

Currently, FINRA Rules 12901(a) and 13901(a) provide that a surcharge will be assessed against each member that: (1) files a claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or third party claim under the Codes; (2) is named as a respondent in a claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or third party claim filed and served under the Codes; or (3) employed, at the time the dispute arose, an associated person who is named as a respondent in a claim, counterclaim, cross claim, or third party claim filed and served under the Codes. FINRA explained that member surcharges are intended to allocate the costs of administering the arbitration case to the brokerage firms that are involved in those cases. Thus, each member is assessed a member surcharge, based on the aggregate claim amount, when it is brought into the case, whether through a claim, counterclaim, cross claim or third party claim. FINRA noted that the member surcharge is the responsibility of the member party and cannot be allocated to any other party (“non-allocable”).⁴¹

The proposal would amend Rules 12901 and 13901 to increase the member surcharges primarily for claim amounts larger than $250,000. The proposal would also make a technical change to the title of the tiers in the “Member Surcharge” charts from “Amount in Dispute” to ⁴⁰ Id. (citing Rules 12701(a) and 13701(a)).

⁴¹ See id. at 37788 (citing Rules 12901(a)(4) and 13901(d)). See also Rules 12701(b) and 13701(b).

“Amount of Claim,” so that the title describing the claim amounts in all of the fee charts in the Codes would be consistent.⁴²

As reflected in Table 4, the proposal would reduce the member surcharge for some smaller claims⁴³ and increase the member surcharge for larger claims.⁴⁴ The proposal would also increase the member surcharge assessed for unspecified claims by $400.⁴⁵ FINRA believes that this change is consistent with comparable increases in the unspecified filing fees for customer and industry claimants. FINRA also noted that member surcharges would remain non-allocable under the proposal, and, thus, would not result in any additional costs to customers.⁴⁶

The proposal would also combine the current $25,000.01-to-$30,000 and $30,000.01-to-$50,000 tiers. FINRA stated that this change “was intended to make the proposed tiers in the surcharge schedule more consistent with other fee schedules in the Codes.”⁴⁷ FINRA also believes that this merger “is a more practical approach for case administration purposes, and would make the surcharge schedule easier to understand for parties.”⁴⁸ In addition, the proposal would divide the current $100,000.01-to-$500,000 tier with its surcharge of $1,700 into two new tiers. The surcharge for the new $100,000.01-to-$250,000 tier would remain $1,700 while the surcharge for the new $250,000.01-to-$500,000 tier would increase by $200 or about 12 percent. FINRA proposed this change because it believes “a large percentage of claims fall within the current tier and FINRA decided that there should be a greater distinction between the claims.”⁴⁹

3. Proposed Amendments to FINRA Rules 12902 and 13902 (Hearing Session Fees, and Other Costs and Expenses)

Currently, FINRA Rules 12902(a) and 13902(a) assess a hearing session fee for each hearing session held. A hearing session is a meeting of the parties and arbitrators, including any hearing, pre-hearing, and injunctive hearing.⁵⁰ According to FINRA, the hearing session fee is “intended to offset FINRA’s cost to conduct hearing sessions.”⁵¹

As FINRA explained, the hearing session fee is allocable to the parties and based on the highest claim amount within the case. In addition, Rules 12902(a)(1) and 13902(a)(1) provide arbitrators the authority to apportion the fees in any manner, including assessing the entire amount against one party.⁵² FINRA also stated that it applies the refundable portion of the filing fee against any hearing session fees assessed against the party that paid the filing fee.⁵³

FINRA is proposing to amend Rule 12902 to increase the hearing session fees for claims of more than $500,000.⁵⁴ The proposal would also make two technical changes to the “Hearing Session Fees” charts: (1) add “(exclusive of interest and expenses)” to the “Amount of Claim” title to make it consistent with those in the Codes’ other fee schedules and to clarify that hearing session fees are based on the claim amount and do not include interest or expenses;⁵⁵ and (2)

⁵³ See Notice, 79 FR at 37789. See also id. at 37788 (explaining, for example, that “if a case goes to hearing, and the panel orders a respondent to pay all hearing session fees, the refundable portion of the filing fee will be refunded to the claimants, less any fees, costs, and expenses that may have been assessed against this party under the Code”).

(a) Hearings with One Arbitrator

As reflected in Table 5 (below), under the proposed rule change, the fees for a hearing session with one arbitrator would not change.⁵⁷ FINRA noted, however, that the proposal would create two new tiers, beginning at $500,000.01, so that the tiers for the fees for a hearing session with one arbitrator match the claim amount tiers for filing fees. FINRA would retain the $450 hearing session fee for each new tier.⁵⁸

FINRA stated that “[i]n assessing the hearing session fees for cases heard by one arbitrator, FINRA determined to retain the current fee structure . . . even though the current fees would not cover the proposed increased honoraria payments for claims in the $.01 - $10,000 tiers.”⁵⁹ FINRA explained that it “would retain the current fees for these lower claim amounts, so that the forum remains accessible and affordable to claimants with smaller claims.”⁶⁰

(b) Hearings with Three Arbitrators

As reflected in Table 6 (below), the proposal would create new tiers for claims amounts starting at $500,000.01 for hearing sessions with three arbitrators and would increase the fees only for those tiers.⁶¹

FINRA stated that it would retain the current fees for lower claim amounts despite the fact that “the hearing session fees do not cover the forum’s actual costs for smaller claims.”⁶²

FINRA stated that it intends this proposed amendment to keep the forum accessible and affordable for claimants with smaller claims.⁶³ FINRA further noted that the proposed increases on larger claim amounts “would provide the forum with enough revenue to cover its honoraria payments for these cases as well as offset the deficits created at the lower tier amounts.”⁶⁴

4. Proposed Amendments to FINRA Rules 12903 and 13903 (Process Fees Paid by Members)

Currently, FINRA Rules 12903(a) and 13903(a) require each member that is a party to an arbitration in which the claim amount is more than $25,000 to pay process fees, which are assessed at specific milestones in each case.⁶⁵ In particular, FINRA assesses each member a non-refundable prehearing process fee of $750 at the time the parties are sent arbitrator lists and a non-refundable hearing process fee, based on the claim amount, when the parties are notified of the date and location of the hearing on the merits. Like the member surcharges, the process fee is non-allocable to other parties to the arbitration.⁶⁶

As reflected in Table 7 (below), the proposal would combine the prehearing process fee and hearing process fee, into one fee, which would be due at the time the parties are sent the arbitrator lists.⁶⁷ FINRA recognizes that this change would result in an increase to the member process fee in many cases.⁶⁸ However, FINRA believes this change is “necessary to ensure that the forum has the resources available at the initial stages of a case to cover the proposed honoraria increases.”⁶⁹ Further, FINRA states that this change would also “make the collection process more efficient for FINRA and the members, as it would reduce the number of invoices sent and collection activities performed by FINRA’s Finance Department.”⁷⁰ The proposed rule change would also amend Rule 12903 to increase the member process fees for claim amounts larger than $250,000.⁷¹

Table 7 (below) shows the current process fees, the proposed combined fees, and the changes between the two.

The proposal would increase the fees for claim amounts beginning with the new $250,000.01-to-$500,000 tier. Similar to the member surcharge increase discussed above, FINRA is proposing to spread the process fee increases among larger claim amounts, while retaining or decreasing the fees associated with the lower claim amounts.⁷² The proposal would also increase the process fees assessed for unspecified claims by $800. FINRA believes that this change is consistent with comparable increases in the unspecified filing fees for customer and industry claimants.⁷³ FINRA also explained that the member process fee – like the member surcharge increase discussed above – would remain non-allocable under the proposal, and, thus, would not result in any additional costs to customers.⁷⁴

III. Summary of Comments and FINRA's Response

As noted above, the Commission received eight comment letters on the proposed rule change⁷⁵ and a response letter from FINRA.⁷⁶ As discussed in more detail below, all of the eight ⁷² See id.

⁷³ See id.

commenters expressed support, in whole or in part, for FINRA’s proposal.⁷⁷ Three of the eight commenters, however, also suggested further modifications.⁷⁸ In addition, two of the eight commenters also expressed partial opposition to the proposal.⁷⁹ The sections below outline the suggestions or specific concerns raised by those five commenters as well as FINRA’s response.

A. FINRA Members Should Pay All Proposed Fee Increases

While a majority of the commenters supported the proposed increase in arbitrator honoraria, two commenters opposed the proposed increase in filing fees that customers would pay to help fund the honoraria increases.⁸⁰

One of these commenters expressed concern “that requiring investors to pay the increased honorarium by raising the filing fees may deny them access to the forum.”⁸¹ Rather, this commenter stated that “FINRA members should be responsible for paying 100% of the proposed increased filing fees claims” given that “investors are forced into the FINRA arbitration forum as a result of mandatory arbitration.”⁸²

Similarly, a second commenter opposed “FINRA’s effort to pass along increased honoraria costs to investors that are forced into FINRA’s dispute resolution forum as the result of industry mandatory pre-dispute arbitration agreements.”⁸³ This commenter contended that investors with “‘more complicated to resolve’ and ‘time-consuming’ claims might prefer pursuing their claims in court rather than paying more for FINRA arbitrators to handle the disputes.”⁸⁴

In addition, both of these commenters argued that because FINRA member firms use pre-dispute arbitration agreements (“PDAAs”) to require their customers to arbitrate claims, investors do not have a choice of forum. Consequently, these commenters asserted that such investors should not be required to pay the proposed increase in filing fees.⁸⁵

In response, FINRA noted that “as claimants and respondents utilize the arbitration facilities to resolve disputes, it would be inequitable for industry members to pay 100 percent of the filing fee increase.”⁸⁶ Furthermore, FINRA disagreed with the one commenter’s assertion that an increase in filing fees for investors may serve to deny access to the forum for investors.⁸⁷ Rather, FINRA stated that the proposal would help minimize the impact on claimants of the increased fees because “the filing fee increases begin for claims over $500,000 and a majority of the increases are added to the refundable portion of the fee.”⁸⁸

⁸³ NASAA Letter at 2 (NASAA generally supports and “does not question FINRA’s need to update arbitrator honoraria” and “appreciates FINRA’s efforts to mitigate the impact to smaller public users,” however, “NASAA respectfully disagrees with FINRA that it is incumbent upon [investors] to pay or contribute more to enhance FINRA’s dispute resolution program.”).

⁸⁴ Id. (claiming that state court filing fees in most jurisdictions are generally less than the filing fees contemplated in the proposal). See also id. (stating that “investors with catastrophic losses as might be found in half- to multi-million dollar claims are often the least able to afford large fees”).

In response to the comment that investors may not be able to afford the proposed filing fees after having suffered “catastrophic losses,”⁸⁹ FINRA noted that “an inability to pay the filing fees would not foreclose an investor’s ability to seek redress in the forum” as FINRA may waive the filing fees “[i]f an investor demonstrates financial hardship.”⁹⁰

In its response, FINRA also noted that neither the use of PDAs by FINRA members nor whether certain claims should be litigated in court or arbitrated is the subject of the proposal. Consequently, FINRA stated that both issues are “outside the scope of the filing.”⁹¹ Nevertheless, FINRA noted that, while the proposed filing fees may not be comparable to those in state courts, “investors experience substantial savings in arbitration compared to litigation.”⁹² Accordingly, FINRA stated that “the benefits and cost savings of arbitration make filing an arbitration claim a less costly option for investors.”⁹³

Therefore, for these reasons, FINRA declined to modify the proposed rule change to assign all filing fee increases to FINRA members.⁹⁴

B. Assessment of Forum Fees Against Respondents

One commenter that opposed the proposal, stating that FINRA members should be responsible for paying all of the proposed increased filing fees, also contended that “[t]his point is emphasized even more when you consider that arbitration panels rarely assess forum fees against respondents even when they find the respondents liable for the claimants’ losses.”⁹⁵

FINRA refuted this commenter’s assertion, calling it “inaccurate and misleading.”⁹⁶ FINRA noted that “arbitrators make allocation decisions on a case-by-case basis depending on what happened during the hearings.”⁹⁷ FINRA also stated that it reviewed customer claimant cases closed by award from 2011 through 2013 and, “[i]n only four of these cases (less than one percent), the respondent was found liable for claimants’ losses, but was not assessed any fees.”⁹⁸ FINRA further stated that three of those four cases were pursued by claimants in default proceedings,⁹⁹ and in the fourth case, only the claimant appeared at the hearing.¹⁰⁰ Furthermore, with respect to the fourth case, FINRA also stated that it “waived the claimant’s filing fees in that matter and the arbitrators awarded the claimant more than 160 percent of the compensatory damages claimed plus $15,000 in sanctions from the respondent firm.”¹⁰¹

For these reasons, FINRA declined to modify its proposal in response to comments.

One commenter claimed that FINRA’s proposal does not provide sufficient information “to assess the reasonableness or anticipated effectiveness of the increases that FINRA proposes” because the statistical models and underlying data were not provided to the public.¹⁰² This commenter requested that FINRA produce, as part of the public comment file, the statistical models FINRA used to “match anticipated revenue with expenses for purposes of setting increased rates.”¹⁰³

In response to this comment, FINRA stated that the information provided in the proposal is “sufficient to elicit meaningful comment.”¹⁰⁴ Moreover, FINRA noted that its financial systems and the data generated by those systems “are used by only FINRA staff when conducting FINRA business and operations.”¹⁰⁵ Accordingly, FINRA claimed that “[b]ecause of the proprietary nature of these systems and their data, FINRA believes this information should remain non-public.”¹⁰⁶

D. Enhance Recruitment to Expand the Arbitrator Roster

One commenter claimed that it cannot assess whether there is a need for increased arbitrator honoraria because FINRA’s proposal does not provide “basic information regarding the existing size or quality of FINRA’s existing arbitrator pool, including relevant recruiting and retention rates.”¹⁰⁷ This commenter also suggested that the Commission “consider expanding FINRA’s roster by revising arbitrator qualifications and by utilizing different recruiting methods of outreach.”¹⁰⁸ Finally, this commenter claimed that “FINRA may have greater flexibility in setting honoraria amounts by expanding its geographical presence.”¹⁰⁹

¹⁰⁵ Id.

In response, FINRA stated that it “relies on a diverse roster of over 6,300 arbitrators to maintain its fair, impartial and efficient system of dispute resolution” and that “[t]he exact number of arbitrators, broken down by public and non-public classifications, is updated monthly and published on [FINRA’s] website.”¹¹⁰ FINRA also responded to the commenter’s concerns about the quality of FINRA’s arbitrators by describing its: (i) minimum requirements for arbitrators; (ii) application and screening processes; (iii) background verification and re-verification processes; (iv) arbitrator training programs; (v) mandatory surveys to ensure classification as either a public or a non-public arbitrator; and (vi) evaluation processes by FINRA staff, the parties, and fellow arbitrators at the conclusion of each case.¹¹¹

With respect to the commenter’s concerns about expanding FINRA’s geographical presence, FINRA explained that it “already focuses on areas of the country where there is a lower number of available arbitrators” and that “[i]n its effort to recruit arbitrators from a diverse group of professionals, FINRA continues to conduct outreach activities in underserved locations.”¹¹² FINRA further noted that it “tracks the success of its recruitment initiatives by asking in its application how applicants learned of the arbitrator opportunity” and that “[i]t also asks [applicants] to provide names of individuals whom they recommend for the roster.”¹¹³

FINRA stated that “the increased honoraria would be helpful in its recruiting efforts, as staff has received feedback from prospective applicants who have declined to apply when they learn of the current pay structure.”¹¹⁴ FINRA further explained that increased honoraria would also support its “retention objective, as current arbitrators express their concerns to FINRA staff regularly about the honoraria levels.”¹¹⁵

For these reasons, FINRA declined to modify its proposal.

E. Apply Increased Honoraria Retroactively

One commenter expressed concern that applying the proposed increased honoraria prospectively would create a two-tier pay structure: one for arbitrators assigned before the proposal’s effective date and another for those assigned after the effective date.¹¹⁶ This commenter suggested making the honoraria increase partially retroactive to pending cases.

In response, FINRA explained that, although it understands the concern, it believes that if ¹¹⁶ See Quarequo Letter at 1 (stating that “[a]lthough this imbalance would be temporary until existing cases work their way through the system, it does not appear fair to have, at least for some time, a ‘two-tier’ pay structure which penalizes those who have been arbitrators longer”).

the suggestion was implemented it “would have a negative impact on the forum’s resources.”¹¹⁷

FINRA noted that if it were to extend the honoraria increases to pending cases, the honoraria payments would not be properly funded, as the fees in those cases would be based on the current, lower fee structure.¹¹⁸ FINRA stated that in order “[t]o simplify the technology programming and to ensure consistent application of the honoraria and fee changes, FINRA believes the increased honoraria should apply to cases filed on or after the effective date.”¹¹⁹

For these reasons, FINRA declined to modify the proposal to make the honoraria increase partially retroactive to pending cases.

F. The Proposal Could Create Conflicts of Interest

One commenter suggested that “FINRA should also consider the impact increased arbitrator compensation could have on certain conflicts of interest.”¹²⁰ For example, “an arbitrator may be reluctant to grant a Motion to Dismiss because it would eliminate the potential compensation they would receive from serving on the panel.”¹²¹ Therefore, this commenter suggested that FINRA consider paying a “set honorarium” which, the commenter believes, “would reduce or eliminate any reluctance on the part of the arbitrator to grant the motion that is motivated by a desire to be adequately compensated for their time.”¹²²

In response, FINRA stated that it “does not believe that increasing the honoraria would prevent arbitrators from performing their duties and deciding disputes in a fair manner, as they ¹¹⁷ Response Letter at 8.

¹¹⁸ See id.

¹¹⁹ Id.

¹²⁰ FSI Letter at 2.

¹²¹ Id.

must agree to do by executing the arbitrator oath.”¹²³ Furthermore, FINRA noted that, “if arbitrators deny a motion to dismiss, it would be because they believe that the grounds for dismissing a claim prior to the conclusion of a claimant’s case in chief have not been met.”¹²⁴

FINRA also clarified that, although the commenter does not define “set honorarium,” FINRA interpreted it to mean “a fixed amount, regardless of the number of motions decided or hearings held during a case.”¹²⁵ FINRA believes that such a payment structure would present the following challenges to the forum: (1) it would negate the benefit of providing the parties with some control over the tasks and activities that arbitrators need to perform in a case;¹²⁶ (2) it “would be unfair to parties whose arbitration case requires a minimal number of hearing sessions as well as to those arbitrators who sit on cases with a large number of hearing sessions,”¹²⁷ and (3) “more cases would go to hearing, as there would be no incentive to settle, which would result in an increase in forum expenses.”¹²⁸

For these reasons, FINRA declined to amend the proposal to pay a “set honorarium.”

G. Calculate Hearing Session Fees at an Hourly Rate

One commenter suggested changing FINRA’s current payment structure for arbitrators

¹²³ Response Letter at 8 (citing Canon 1 of the Code of Ethics for Arbitrators in Commercial Disputes which states that “an arbitrator should uphold the integrity and fairness of the arbitration process” and requires that “arbitrators conduct themselves in a way that is fair to all parties and should not be swayed by outside pressure, public clamor, and fear of criticism or self-interest”).

“from sessions of ‘four hours or less’ to an hourly rate.”¹²⁹ Specifically, this commenter claimed that, in its experience, “most hearing sessions last significantly less than four hours and the length of each session can vary considerably,”¹³⁰ and that arbitrators are compensated the same amount regardless of whether a hearing session lasts two hours or four hours.¹³¹

In response, FINRA explained that the structure of hearing session payments is not the subject of this rule filing and therefore outside the scope of the proposal.¹³² Therefore, FINRA declined to respond to that comment at this time.¹³³

IV. Discussion and Commission Findings

The Commission has carefully considered the proposal, the comments received, and FINRA’s responses to the comments. Based on its review of the record, the Commission finds that the proposed rule change is consistent with the requirements of the Act and the rules and regulations thereunder applicable to a national securities association.¹³⁴ In particular, the Commission finds that the proposed rule change is consistent with Section 15A(b)(5) of the Act,¹³⁵ which requires that FINRA’s rules provide for the equitable allocation of reasonable dues, fees, and other charges among its members and other persons using any facility or system which FINRA operates or controls. The Commission also finds that the proposed rule change is ¹²⁹ PIRC Letter at 2 (suggesting that “[t]his more equitable compensation structure should help eliminate unnecessary expenses to FINRA – which are passed along to claimants and members”).

¹³¹ See id.

¹³² See Response Letter at 9.

¹³³ See id.

¹³⁴ In approving the proposed rule change, the Commission has also considered the rule change’s impact on efficiency, competition, and capital formation. See 15 U.S.C. 78c(f).

¹³⁵ 15 U.S.C. 78o-3(b)(5).

consistent with Section 15A(b)(6) of the Act,¹³⁶ which requires, among other things, that FINRA’s rules be designed to prevent fraudulent and manipulative acts and practices, to promote just and equitable principles of trade, and, in general, to protect investors and the public interest.

As outlined above, the Commission received eight comment letters on the proposed rule change¹³⁷ and FINRA’s response to the comments.¹³⁸ While the Commission appreciates the suggestions raised by some commenters, the Commission believes that FINRA responded appropriately to their concerns. Most notably, the Commission agrees with FINRA’s observation that “[a] majority of the commenters acknowledge that, as it has been 15 years since the last increase, the proposed increase is long overdue and critical to the forum in recruiting and retaining a roster of high quality arbitrators.”¹³⁹

Specifically, the Commission believes that the proposed rule change would further the purposes of the Act as it provides for the equitable allocation of reasonable fees, surcharges and other charges among FINRA members, customers, associated persons, or other non-members using FINRA’s arbitration forum.¹⁴⁰ The Commission agrees with the views of certain commenters that FINRA: (1) “investigated several alternative approaches for increasing honoraria and has struck an effective balance” and (2) took “a measured and balanced approach to the economic considerations that are associated with the arbitrator honoraria increases.”¹⁴¹

The Commission also notes, as certain commenters did, “FINRA’s effort to minimize the exposure of the fee increases to the investing public.”¹⁴² The Commission also agrees that FINRA’s proposal to allocate the majority of the proposed fee increases among higher claim amounts will help “[minimize] the impact of the increases on smaller claims and keeps the arbitration forum accessible for the small investor.”¹⁴³

Moreover, the Commission also believes that the proposed rule change would further the purposes of the Act as it is reasonably designed to protect investors and the public interest.¹⁴⁴ In addition to the observations above regarding FINRA’s efforts to minimize the exposure of its fee increases to investors in order to keep the forum accessible to small investors,¹⁴⁵ the Commission also agrees with FINRA’s assessment that the proposal is designed to “retain a roster of high-quality arbitrators and attract qualified individuals who possess the skills necessary to manage arbitration cases and consider thoroughly all arbitration issues presented, which are essential

See also Aidikoff Letter at 1 (stating that “increasing these payments will help retain qualified individuals in the pool as well as helping to recruit new arbitrators.”); Bakhtiari Letter at 1 (stating that “[t]he honoraria raise is fair and will not materially affect aggrieved public investors that file claims in the Finra forum”).
